

Tumyaraa: The Path Bridging Program

TUMYARAA

— BRIDGE PROGRAM —

Tumyaraa: The Path Bridging Program

Join a tight knit, deeply culturally connected, and hands-on college readiness cohort and start building your pathway to college success and beyond.

What is Tumyaraa: The Path Bridging Program?

Tumyaraa is Alaska Pacific University's (APU) college readiness program empowering rural high school students to use culture as a bridge to college success. Developed with extensive community input, the program prioritizes students' strengths as learners first and provides hands-on, culturally connected math and writing courses alongside year-round support from dedicated program staff.

The week-long intensives take place during the spring and fall; they are also an excellent opportunity for high school students to get comfortable with the college experience in Alaska and campus life early on.

This program is intended for Indigenous high schoolers enrolled in grades 10 and 11. Enrollment is now open for incoming high school sophomores.

Join the Tumyaraa: The Path Bridging 2023/2024 Program today!

Make new friends and strengthen your college support network.

Build upon fundamental mathematics and writing skills to prepare for college and pave your way to academic success.

Visit APU in Anchorage and immerse yourself in learning that is exciting and engaging.

Contact us to apply today!

*Have questions?
Scan here!*

You can contact Tumyaraa program staff directly:

Will Elliott, Project Director: welliott@alaskapacific.edu, 907-957-2347

Barbara Amos, Alaska Native & Rural Student Services Coordinator: bamos@alaskapacific.edu, 907-564-8393